

TELLS OF OFFER BY LOVETT,

WHO SAID THAT HE WAS TIRED
OF HIS WIFE'S SNUBAnd Wanted to See the Record of Intimacy
With the Lovett to Testify Against Her
The Defendant's Mother Explains
About the "Forbidden Speech" Letter.

One of the features yesterday of the divorce case of George F. Lovett against his wife, Grace E. Lovett, on trial before Justice Madison and a jury in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, was the testimony of Mrs. Sarah Wells, the defendant's mother, who explained away a letter on which the plaintiff had counted much. Another was the assertion of a man whom Lovett had accused of intimacy with Mrs. Lovett that Lovett had sought to induce him to testify against the defendant.

Mrs. Martin Hastings of Orono, N. Y., who stood in the same teaching line with Mrs. Lovett in Jacksonville, Fla., was cross-examined by Lawyer Ketchum. She said that one morning about 5 o'clock she was talking to John L. Hess in the hallway about money her husband had sent to her through Hess and saw Harry Grant, shoes in hand, leaving Mrs. Lovett's room.

On another occasion, she said, she went to the defendant's room to wake her up early. She rapped and turned the knob of the door opening it. Mrs. Hastings declared that Grant was in the room and he dashed into a closet.

Harry Hess testified that he had seen Grant leaving the defendant's room on the occasion mentioned by Mrs. Hastings. He had seen Grant sitting on the piazza with an arm around Mrs. Lovett.

Lawyer Baldwin of Mr. Lovett's counsel got behind the story by which he was impeaching Hess. Mr. Ketchum objected to the innovation and Justice Madison ordered Baldwin to change his position. He did so, but declared that there was an imputation against him concerning Mr. Ketchum's remarks. His Honor said he didn't think so.

Opening the case for the defendant, Mr. Ketchum said he would attempt to show that the plaintiff had threatened witnesses and that the suit had been brought in bad faith. Seven allegations of misconduct had been made against Mrs. Lovett, but all save one had been dropped.

Mrs. Wells was the first witness for the plaintiff. She spoke of the letter containing a love sonnet entitled "Forbidden Speech," which had been sent to Grant. Mrs. Wells said that there was nothing in it. The letter had been the result of a collaboration between her daughter and a woman who had testified against her.

"I bought the magazine from which the sonnet was clipped," Mrs. Wells said. "The letter was written in my presence. There was no secrecy about it. I regard it as a girl's freak or nonsense. I am quite sure my daughter never intended to send it to Grant."

The witness was asked how old her daughter was and she said: "She was three years younger at the time than now."

Later on the witness said Mrs. Lovett was close upon 33.

Harry Heydorn of Santa Cruz, Cal., said a year ago Mr. Lovett called at his office in Denver and invited him to call at his hotel. He went, and Mr. Lovett, the witness declared, said he was about to sue him on the ground of intimacy with Mrs. Lovett.

The witness told him he had no just cause for an action. Further, he said, Lovett remarked that he was tired of Mrs. Lovett anyway, and intended to get a divorce; he was a man of money and would make it worth while to the witness to tell what he knew.

Heydorn said he told Mr. Lovett nothing detrimental to the woman. The witness admitted that he once accompanied her to Manhattan Beach and had also dined at the Waldorf-Astoria with her, escorting her back to her home in a cab. She was perfectly sober.

SENATOR RAINES REPLIES

To the Charges of the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

ROCHESTER, June 20.—Senator John Raines to-day issued a statement replying to the charges of the Anti-Saloon League, members of which have started a campaign to defeat him for re-nomination and election.

The Rev. Dr. Howard Russell, superintendent of the league, accused Mr. Raines of defeating the local option law of 1905, of preventing its being reported in the next Legislature and also of refusal to report a special rule to discharge the committee and bring the bill to a vote on the closing day of the session.

Sensor Raines dismisses the first charges as being ridiculous, but admits the truth of the last accusation, and says that to have reported the rule would have jeopardized some important legislation and would unquestionably have necessitated a special session, as some of the department bills would have been sidetracked.

The Citizen's Union Bureau of City Betterment sent out a long report last night stating that some of the tenement houses purchased by the city to provide the site for the new Chelsea park, and to be demolished within a few months, are in an unsanitary condition. They offer photographs to show that the city owns tenement houses that do not comply with the law. Many of the houses have already been vacated and the city is merely awaiting, before tearing down the buildings, the approval by the Appellate Division of the report of the condemnation commission.
